Introduction

Physical and Psychosocial Aspects of Protecting Crowded Space is a programme suite of four courses which focus on the changing dynamics and psychosocial impacts of managing and securing events and venues in uncertain times.

The courses will be delivered by key industry figures; Professor Chris Kemp (an authority in the management of crowded places and CEO of MOM); Peter Dalton (International Protective Security Consultant); Pascal Viot (specialist in crowd management and emergency planning); and Morten Therkildsen (expert for crowd safety management in Scandinavia).

The facilitators will focus on how both theoretical and practical aspects are being re-examined and re-imagined as we continue to work outside what we perceived as the normal. The protect duty and Covid-safe aspects of today's society will also feature.
